Overview

Your distributor will send you an access code for the number of stations purchased along with instructions for entering your code. The code is a site license turning the installation from a trial version to a live installation for the number of stations ordered. Once the code never has to be entered again and cannot be used again. Should you wish to add additional stations, Arctic Palm will update and resend the code and when entered the station count will be adjusted accordingly.

Licensing

Before entering the access code, ensure you have full access to the installation directory and the Arctic Palm Registration site is not being blocked.
